Heartwarming and Insightful.

By Jamusu

First published in 1955, The Sweet Flypaper of Life, is a deft depiction of life in Harlem as seen through the eyes of Sister Mary Bradley.

Sympathetically juxtaposed with stunning black & white photographs captured by master photographer Roy DeCarava, and astute text written by renowned poet Langston Hughes, it adroitly conveys the struggles, triumphs, and relationships of every day black people.

The marriage of these two genres birthed a photo-story that has reached legendary status amongst both photographers and poets alike. Being a first of its time collaboration, DeCarava and Hughes, elite masters of their craft, unapologetically affirmed a gentler side of Harlem life of which was scarcely or never before documented.

Last re-printed in 1984, I wholeheartedly recommend you purchase a copy of this hard to find out of print masterpiece if ever the chance arises. It is only then that you will truly appreciate what it means to be bathed fully by "The Sweet Flypaper of Life".

A Must Read!

By Jude Kone'

Roy DeCarava is the master! This is a basic must read for serious students, and lovers of this genre in photography.

Wonderful photos and a beautiful story

By Becky Senf

This collaborative book between Hughes and De Carava is small and wonderful. The story by Hughes is a gentle tale of one woman's life in Harlem in 1955. It is richly illustrated with the beautiful photographs of Harlem family life by De Carava.
